LAW AS DATA · SAMPLE ARTICLE

Rethinking legal practice in the digital age

2026-10-28 · A Kenyan advocate

Technology is changing how legal work is organised, delivered and understood. Beyond digitising documents, what would it mean to design a legal practice around better access, clearer processes and informed professional judgement?

Sample article — for demonstration only.

Beyond digitisation

A digital practice should improve the quality of legal work, not simply reproduce paper processes on a screen.

- Organise information consistently.
- Recognise accessibility barriers.
- Evaluate outcomes rather than activity.

Professional responsibility

Advocates must practise with care regardless of the tools they use.

For general information and academic discussion only. Not legal advice.